MEET THE EDITOR

of Incident Prevention Magazine

Kate Wade
EDITORIAL DIRECTOR

Kate has been shaping Incident Prevention magazine's safety-focused editorial content since 2008. Combining a passion for safety with a background in journalism, publishing and legal compliance, she is committed to helping the utility industry eliminate serious injuries and fatalities. Kate works with subject matter experts, including Incident Prevention's dedicated editorial advisory board, to develop relevant articles intended to advance worker well-being. You can also listen to Kate on the Utility Safety Podcast as she engages some of today's best and brightest industry leaders in conversations spanning a range of topics, from underground electrical training to heat-stress prevention to neuroscience and understanding the human brain.
